RECOMMENDATION:

The Education Committee recommends the NCWP allocates up to $250 to sponsor and host a differentiated seminar offering evidence-based research, practical, actionable strategies, support tips, discussion, and services for parents and caregivers of school-aged children (TK-12) during distance learning.

BACKGROUND: As a result of the COVID-19 (coronavirus) pandemic, millions of young people and their families have watched their local schools close down for weeks, leading to the entirety of the academic year and the beginning to another school year. It’s important to find grounding during these unprecedented moments and engage in rich distance learning experiences. This seminar will combine evidence-based research and practical, actionable strategies to help inform and inspire caregivers to have healthy dialogue about children's mental health and learning issues during distance learning.
